Be Sure To See The WHITE Combination Car

Carries 8 Passengers or 1500 Pounds Freight Interchangeable In A Moment

This car will give you more practical use, more comfort, more pleasure and last longer than any car built. It carries eight passengers easily in its comfortable seats and there is plenty of extra room for the lunch baskets and hand baggage. It takes but a moment for one person to remove the seats and transform it into the most practical baggage or freight carrier for country or town service.

The White Combination is so well balanced that it is as light to steer as a small touring car. Its compact, long stroke White Engine is so simple that any one can operate it. The car has a speed that will keep up with nearly any car built and will climb hills that many cars could not climb at all. This car is built with the same care and excellent materials that have made White cars and trucks famous the world over for their quality. It is exactly the car you have been looking for.

CATCHING UP

Richmond (Va.) News-Leader: On the occasion of one of his addresses in Richmond Mr. Bryan said: "A leader is a man who is going the same way the crowd is going, but keeping a little ahead." At that time Mr. Bryan was so far ahead of the crowd as a whole that he seemed a wanderer to many. But the crowd has caught up, and what were wild political heresies fifteen or twenty years ago are commonplaces today. And this is always so.

The growth of ideas, strange as it may seem, takes place in politics as well as in transportation, only more slowly. It took the world a long time to progress from the sled to the wheel, and another long time from the horse-drawn vehicle to the steam engine. And prophets who foretold the day when men would travel with the swiftness of birds from place to place were hooted as wild dreamers or killed as dangerous heretics. Today that kind of prophet is hired by a syndicate and given a laboratory in which to work out his invention. So far have we progressed in understanding what the physical world may be made to render us in comfort and speed. In politics the change has been slower, but the process has been the same, and Mr. Bryan's career and present position are extraordinary confirmations of this truth. In 1894 Mr. Bryan was called a nihilist by one honest paper at least. The cause of this epithet was that Mr. Bryan urged the physical valuation of railroads as the real basis for railroad rates. The nihilism of eighteen years ago has become the accepted doctrine, not only for the interstate commerce, but for the enlightened states of the union, today. And so it has gone!

The supreme court adopted, of its own motion, many of those reforms of admiration which only the wild-eyed radicals demanded in 1896. Both parties are calling for income tax, and the success of Wisconsin and Virginia shows that the income tax, even for states, can be levied and collected with fairness and with effect.

Today Mr. Bryan, still a little ahead of the procession, is calling on the people to restore representative government by using the initiative and referendum. But to such students as even Woodrow Wilson this method of procedure at one time seemed the height of folly and the beginning of destruction. The history of Oregon let in great light for Mr. Wilson, and the people of the conservative east will sooner or later come near to finding that they, too, are made of the same stuff, swayed by the same passions, deceived by the same tricks, and led by the same bosses as their brothers in the west.

Twenty years is a very short time for such changes to come as some of those which Mr. Bryan stood for, and he would be a rash prophet who would say, with the example of what has been done in the last two de-
